Stem Cells Therapy

Message from the Guest Editor

Recently, advances in stem cell research and regenerative medicine have provided promising opportunities in the emerging field of “Stem Cell Therapy”, which will be the topic of the upcoming Special Issue of Life. The goal of this Special Issue is to report on state-of-the-art research innovations, findings, and developments in stem-cell-based therapies from experts, researchers, and practitioners. The Special Issue will be of interest to a wide-ranging audience, including researchers, scientists, clinicians, and professionals from academia, government, and industry, as well as the public at large. This issue will focus on the use of multipotent and pluripotent stem cells and their derivatives to treat a broad range of diseases and dysfunctions, with a special focus on human degenerative diseases, inflammatory diseases, musculoskeletal dysfunctions, wound repair, and cancers. We welcome submissions of the latest research and reviews on all aspects ranging from cell and molecular biology to clinical trials.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Life (ISSN 2075-1729) is an international, peer-reviewed open access journal that publishes scientific studies related to fundamental themes in life sciences. Some papers are published individually, while others are submitted for inclusion in special issues with guest editors. You are invited to contribute a research article, essay, or a review to be considered for publication.
