Message from the Guest Editors

Cardiovascular disease has both a high incidence and an increased mortality worldwide. This is supported by the newest statistics, which also show high rates of diseases of the vessels, either those of the heart leading to coronary artery disease or those of other circulatory pathways leading to peripheral artery disease.

Considering these, there is a constant need for medical publications on the topic to either update current knowledge or promote newer concepts regarding optimal patient management (i.e., preventive measures, associated risk factors, revascularization procedures, drug treatments, and patient rehabilitation).

We therefore warmly invite and highly encourage your submissions to the “Advances in the Diagnosis and Treatment of Coronary Artery and Peripheral Artery Diseases” of the Medicina Journal.
