Message from the Guest Editors

Most plant pathogens and foodborne microorganisms are of international interest; hence, their control falls upon all of us. Therefore, the purpose of this Special Issue is to publish relevant scientific data and reviews that include novel non-chemical and non-toxic alternatives for the control of agricultural pathogenic microorganisms. The scope of this Special Issue of Molecules entitled, 'Chitosan and natural compounds for the control of preharvest and postharvest diseases of horticultural commodities' is focused on ongoing research and the latest developments with animal and plant derivatives, plus other options that are gaining interest within the scientific community.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the premier open access journal dedicated to experimental organic chemistry, and now in its 25th year of publication, the papers published in Molecules span from classical synthetic methodology to natural product isolation and characterization, as well as physicochemical studies and the applications of these molecules as pharmaceuticals, catalysts and novel materials. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite papers on multidisciplinary topics bridging biochemistry, biophysics and materials science, as well as timely reviews and topical issues on cutting edge fields in all these areas.
