Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Compared with natural products from plants and animals, microbial metabolites have more structural diversity, as a result of their wide variety and richer resources. Moreover, due to the advantages of fast microbial reproduction, strong plasticity and simple production process, it is easier to realize industrial production. Therefore, microorganisms have become the main source of natural products. This Special Issue provides an activity evaluation of metabolites produced by microbial fermentation in pesticide use, separation, purification and identification of active compounds, and an evaluation of the possibility of their industrial development.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the premier open access journal dedicated to experimental organic chemistry, and now in its 25th year of publication, the papers published in Molecules span from classical synthetic methodology to natural product isolation and characterization, as well as physicochemical studies and the applications of these molecules as pharmaceuticals, catalysts and novel materials. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite papers on multidisciplinary topics bridging biochemistry, biophysics and materials science, as well as timely reviews and topical issues on cutting edge fields in all these areas.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges \(APC\) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE \(Web of Science\), PubMed, MEDLINE, PMC, Reaxys, CaPlus / SciFinder, MarinLit, AGRIS, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q2 (Chemistry, Multidisciplinary) / CiteScore - Q1 (Chemistry (miscellaneous))
