Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Porous carbons of a different nature, structure, and properties have found application in a wide variety of fields. These materials are considered very sustainable and ecofriendly, and as such suitable for a number of environmental applications: from adsorption to catalysis, and from water treatment to sustainable production process, including energy production. This Special Issue intends to address the advances and contributions of these materials in relevant areas related to the environment.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the premier open access journal dedicated to experimental organic chemistry, and now in its 25th year of publication, the papers published in Molecules span from classical synthetic methodology to natural product isolation and characterization, as well as physicochemical studies and the applications of these molecules as pharmaceuticals, catalysts and novel materials. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite papers on multidisciplinary topics bridging biochemistry, biophysics and materials science, as well as timely reviews and topical issues on cutting edge fields in all these areas.
