Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

The molecular imaging techniques Positron Emission Tomography (PET) and Single-Photon Emission Computed Tomography (SPECT) are important assets in the era of personalized medicine. These techniques depend on radiotracers that can localize at preselected disease biomarkers that have been chosen on the basis of their likelihood to influence patient management. At present, very few radiotracers are regularly used for the vast majority of PET and SPECT imaging procedures in clinical settings. However, recent advances in our understanding of cancer biology have revealed a wide array of cancer biomarkers that represent potentially valuable targets. The aim of this Special Issue is to collate examples of novel radiotracers that have the potential to advance this exciting frontier in medical imaging of cancer.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the premier open access journal dedicated to experimental organic chemistry, and now in its 25th year of publication, the papers published in Molecules span from classical synthetic methodology to natural product isolation and characterization, as well as physicochemical studies and the applications of these molecules as pharmaceuticals, catalysts and novel materials. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite papers on multidisciplinary topics bridging biochemistry, biophysics and materials science, as well as timely reviews and topical issues on cutting edge fields in all these areas.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges \(APC\) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE \(Web of Science\), PubMed, MEDLINE, PMC, Reaxys, CaPlus / SciFinder, MarinLit, AGRIS, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q2 (Chemistry, Multidisciplinary) / CiteScore - Q1 (Chemistry (miscellaneous))
