Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The field of osteology is rapidly evolving. Recent discoveries have transformed our understanding of bone metabolism, healing mechanisms, and the management of skeletal disorders. A deeper insight into the biological and clinical processes underlying bone repair and regeneration offers new opportunities to enhance patient care and therapeutic strategies.

Osteology was established with this vision in mind. Osteology is an international, peer-reviewed, open access journal dedicated to basic and clinical research in bone science, published quarterly online by MDPI. Supported by a dynamic scientific community, the journal is committed to excellence through a rigorous and transparent peer-review process.

We invite researchers worldwide to submit high-quality clinical and experimental studies to advance innovation and knowledge in osteology.
