Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will focus on “Christology: Christian Writings and the Reflections of Theologians”. The first two entries will be on Scripture: one on the Old Testament images and prophecies of Christ, and the second on the New Testament presentation of Christ. The other entries will be on significant Christian theologians who have written on the person and mission of Jesus Christ. The articles on specific theologians will provide (a) a brief biography of the theologian; (b) the historical context and influences on the theologian; (c) his or her key Christological insights; (d) the ongoing significance of the Christology of the writer. The theologians to be covered include Origen, Cyril of Alexandria, Maximus the Confessor, Thomas Aquinas, Bonaventure, Nicholas of Cusa, Margaret Mary Alacoque, and Hans Urs von Balthasar. There will also be an introductory essay by the editor, which will provide a historical overview of how Christology developed over the centuries, the major controversies, and the variety of Christological perspectives today.
