Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

In this Special Issue, research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- Sociology of religion and related areas: the sociological study of religion and its particular relationship to anthropology and history: concepts, objects and methods.
- Religious pluralism and globalization: multiple religions and mapping of the religious fact in today's world in comparative perspective.
- Secularization, religious mutations and modern re-sacralizations: dynamics surrounding religion in today's contemporary and advanced societies.
- Churches and religions: functions, dimensions and transformations of religious institutions in modernity.
- Religion and conflict: religion and its relationship with power as a trigger for conflicts, tensions and violent radicalizations; and the role of religion also as a factor of pacification and social cohesion.
- Religion and identity: the contribution of religion to the formation of individual and collective identities, to the expression of cultures and to the progress of symbolic languages.

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community - disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
