Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue of Religions, entitled “The Premodern Mind: Scientific and Religious Thought from the Middle Ages to the Reformation,” seeks to examine the intellectual history of the middle ages, the Renaissance, and the Reformation. I encourage submissions that deal with scientific, religious, or esoteric ideas and systems of thought. Submissions that consider the interplay of religious, scientific, and/or esoteric thought are particularly welcome. Furthermore, whereas scholars often examine these periods from a Eurocentric focus, I invite submissions that consider intellectual history from a wider, more global focus. Papers that consider the intellectual history of areas traditionally considered non-Western are welcome. Scholars who consider intellectual history through the lens of contact between and influence upon differing traditions are urged to submit papers.

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community - disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
