Message from the Guest Editor

This special issue of Religions is dedicated to Catholic education. This topic is understood very broadly and includes all dimensions of education provided within the Catholic Church, in Catholic schools and Catholic universities around the world. Education forms a very significant activity within the Roman Catholic Church. In many countries the Church runs numerous schools and universities. This kind of education grants the opportunity to base education on Christian anthropology and to shape students' personality in the light of the Gospel. The cultural, ethical and religious formation of young generations is very important not only for the Church but also for the entire society. Due to increasing secularisation, Catholic education has to face many new challenges, so the main purpose of this special issue is to specify them and look for answers to solve these problems. In addition, this special issue is open to research on Catholic Religious Education in different countries and from different perspectives. Papers presenting Catholic education and Catholic Religious Education in historical, contemporary and future perspectives are also welcomed.

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community - disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
