

Special Issue

Faith in Action: Examining the Power and Purpose of a Public Theology in Contemporary Society

Message from the Guest Editor

The praxis of a public theology in the current global setting anticipates differently structured public domains, whether or not a theological voice is readily heard or is required to secure that right.

This Special Issue aims to explore how the practice of a public theology is performed in particular contexts that are both geographical in expression (hence local) and representative of global public issues. As a result, original research articles and reviews are welcome.

Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following topics:

- Climate change/the Anthropocene;
- War/peace;
- Democracy/fake claims.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
