Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Migration is a long-standing central factor shaping a multitude of policy debates and societal challenges across Europe. This special Issue aims to approach migration and integration from a life course perspective. In line with an increasing number of scholarly calls, we therefore invite papers that further scientific knowledge on the unfolding of life courses of groups with a migration background (i.e., migrants and their descendants) in Europe. We particularly invite migration-related papers looking into labour market careers, partnership and fertility histories, the development of family ties and solidarity, and (mental) health trajectories. We aim to bring together original empirical papers taking a quantitative approach to explain variation in life courses, as well as qualitative research focussing on lived experiences, or mixed method studies.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
