Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue focuses on the conditions for social work in the field of disability and the challenges of contemporary social disability work. In addition, we want to highlight trends and future scenarios facing social work and disabled people.

Based on different research contributions, this Special Issue focuses on analyses of the current situation and conditions of social work in the field of disability and development trends. We particularly welcome articles on the experiences of disabled people, of their families and networks, of social workers, of managers, and of politicians. The factors that either contribute to or hinder quality social work are of great interest. These include challenges related to the type and extent of disability, staff competence, evidence-based practices, the organisation of social work, and legal provisions. The tension between disabled people's right to self-determination, autonomy, and participation and the practice and context of social work raises empirical and theoretical questions related to factors such as power and intersectionality.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
