Message from the Guest Editors

The primary function of strategic management is to establish objectives and implement guidelines that enhance the competitiveness of an organization and generate value for every stakeholder involved. In order to maintain appeal to consumers, employees, and investors, it is imperative that sustainability is prioritized. Combining sustainable development and strategic management is a novel approach for many businesses, and some managers may require convincing that sustainability merits such weight in decision-making.

In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but not limited to) the following:

sustainable management, marketing and consumer behaviour in business, tourism, corporate finance, capital structure in business, Branding and corporate communication fostering sustainability, government regulations and macro marketing strategies fostering sustainable development and sustainable financing

We welcome submissions on any topic related to the aforementioned thematic sections. Your ideas are always important.
