Dear Colleagues,

In this Special Issue, we would like to join two well-known topics of high actuality: mental health and a sustainable environment.

This Special Issue's aim is to bring together new research and interventions helping to create and maintain a healthy, sustainable environment, thereby helping to maintain and constantly improve our mental health, which is so affected by multiple environmental factors.

Given the above, studies on the following topics, but are not limited to, are welcome:

Social environment: socioeconomic, racial, ethnic, and related conditions
