Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

The aim of this Special Issue is to inspire experts in the field of urban planning and transportation carrying out in-depth research on urban development, urban transportation system planning and management in the new era and develop updated land-use and transportation models. All of these will be helpful for construction of the green transportation and the smart city under the two-carbon goal and then improve the service capacity of transportation and the quality of life of urban residents. We hope that this Special Issue will contribute to sustainability in terms of city growth.

In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- History of urbanization
- History of motorization
- Shared transportation
- Traffic demand forecasting
- Location of facilities and travel behaviors
- Public transit planning and operation
- Parking supply and management
- Modal shift
- Road network planning
- TOD
- Compact city
