Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

In recent years, the academic discourse on the transition from a linear to a circular economy model has pursued meaningful mechanisms for shared analytical frameworks and metrics at the interface between the economy and the environment. Circular and bio-based efforts to transform production–consumption systems and minimise environmental impacts are built around overarching principles of sustainability, waste valorisation, and ecosystem conservation.

In an attempt to contribute to this direction, we welcome both theoretical and empirical contributions in line with a multidisciplinary approach, which may collectively provide up-to-date, fruitful, and actionable insights on pressing issues relating to relevant trends, developments, or critical aspects that warrant both scholars' attention, as well as the consideration of both decision makers and practitioners.
