Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

At present, major developed economies have reached the peak of carbon emissions, and many countries or regions have proposed timetables for achieving carbon neutrality. In this case, what are the differences and transitions in terms of policy tools, policy objectives, and policy subjects amongst various countries or regions? How should developing countries optimize the policy combinations at different stages? What successful experience can be learned or have demonstrational effects?

This Special Issue invites multidisciplinary/transdisciplinary contributions, including, but not limited to, the following topics:

- Carbon finance and carbon emission trading mechanisms;
- Environmental sustainability assessment and high-quality development;
- Environmental regulation and collaborative emission reduction;
- Spatial variability of pollutants at the regional scale;
- Digital economy and green innovation;
- Pro-environmental behavior and green transformation.
