Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

UNESCO points out that culture is part of our being and shapes our identity. Without culture, there is no sustainable development. For this reason, the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) related to the sustainability of cities and communities (Goal 11) and Quality Education (Goal 4) include the promotion of projects that value the conservation and teaching of the artistic, industrial, archaeological, historical and cultural heritage of cities, as well as the use of the resources of the environment, of heritage, to generate learning that contributes to the development of Quality Education and more sustainable use of educational resources. Heritage and its educational and sustainable use is presented as a revealing resource for the teaching-learning process in formal and non-formal education.
