Message from the Guest Editors

The goal of the business model has switched from conventionally maximizing profit to the current three fields for Sustainability Development Goals (SDGs), i.e., environment, society, and economy which also leads the trend of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR). This Special Issue of Sustainability focuses on the aspect about SDGs and CSR including environment and energy innovation, societal transitions and innovation business model. The new business model development for any enterprise is a critical step in facing future market competition. Business model innovation, cooperate social responsibility, sustainability development goals, environment and new energy, societal transitions are all topics that welcome to submit in this special issue.
