Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

The Hellenic Institute of Transportation Engineers (HITE) and the Hellenic Institute of Transport (HIT/CERTH) are co-organizing the “10th International Congress on Transportation Research” (ICTR 2021). Potential ICTR participants include the research and academic community, as well as the public and private sector involved in the development and implementation of innovative projects in the field of transport. The focus of this Special Issue is bringing together scientists and further discussion on topics such as sustainable urban mobility, transport planning and policy, intelligent transport systems, etc. and their findings to serve this extremely interesting broad area of alternative sustainable transportation.

The objective and purpose of this Special Issue is to showcase recent top-notch research activities in sustainable transportation, merge research findings and policy-making tasks, facilitate the exchange of knowledge in the local and international level, and draw conclusions and shape recommendations on the future of transportation in Greece as well as abroad.
