Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue aims to collect contributions that focus on the future of the industry, as seen from the perspective of sustainability, focusing on the implementation of a sustainable transition to the industrial sector and the possible ways to foster and tackle it in an integrated manner.

The Special Issue will include, but will not be limited to, the following topics:

- Implementing sustainability in industrial firms and industrial systems (interventions; the decision-making process; barriers and drivers; performance).
- Integrating sustainability in industrial firms and industrial systems (relationships, synergies and trade-offs of sustainability and other aspects, such as circular economy, industry 4.0, operations and quality management).

This Special Issue welcomes heterogeneous contributions such as: theoretical contributions proposing the advancement of current knowledge; empirical contributions understanding the current situation and suggesting and proposing guidelines for future actions; and revisions of the extant knowledge and propositions for future advancements.
