It is our pleasure to announce the launch of a new Special Issue (SI) on “Impact of Water Pollution on Human Health and Environmental Sustainability” in the journal Sustainability. This SI focuses on cutting-edge research in the field of water pollution, human health, and environmental sustainability. We are now living in the Anthropocene, and numerous classical and emerging pollutants threaten human and environmental health. Water pollution (organic, inorganic, and biological) has become a great concern worldwide. Water is polluted in diversified ways, with deleterious impacts on health and the ecosystem. Thus, this Special Issue will be focusing on highlighting the role of water pollution on human health and environmental sustainability.
