Message from the Guest Editors

The Special Issue is dedicated to sustainable investment (SI), generally referring to the environmental, social, and governance (ESG) factors that are integrated into the financial investment process. Submissions solicited for the Special Issue should discuss or empirically demonstrate conditions facilitating the successful accumulation of this knowledge, whether by means of interacting with companies; choosing strategies for investing in company stocks; or by other means such as altering investment practices, organizational norms, and interpretations of the legal aspects of the fiduciary role to become aligned with beneficiaries' visions of a good life.

An important task for all submissions to the Special Issue is hence to provide an unequivocal definition of SI. The Special Issue should be an opportunity for those engaged in SI research to increase other sustainability researchers' knowledge of SI, thereby possibly paving the way for more interdisciplinary collaboration in the future.
