Message from the Guest Editor

The Special Issue, entitled “Sustainability Issues in Road Construction and Use”, involves all activities from cradle to grave of a road infrastructure: models to assess atmosphere emissions and identify low-impact techniques; strategies to manage the traffic demand for a given service level; studies on innovative, “green” materials; procedures, laboratory, and in situ tests to use secondary raw materials in road construction; procedures to increase passengers’ and workers’ safety; technologies to prevent and minimize the mechanical, social, and economical consequences of accidents; technology challenges for energy efficiency of vehicles; and all analyses aimed at pursuing sustainable development challenges.

This Special Issue addresses the most important topics in these very frontiers and the way they could be implemented.
