This Special Issue will focus on the evolution of slow fashion and its impact on both consumers and the industry. Furthermore, the Special Issue will also support forward-thinking articles examining the impact of slow fashion in the future. This Special Issue aims to fill the gap in the literature and provide an in-depth look at this important phenomenon.

Both conceptual and research-based papers are invited from innovators, thought-leaders, and scientists to address the challenges and opportunities of slow fashion in the retail industry. Some of the suggested topics include but are not limited to:

1. Impact of changing consumer behavior and slow fashion;
2. Using media to create brand awareness/acceptance for slow fashion brands;
3. Comparing and contrasting slow fashion and sustainability;
4. Segmenting the consumers based on their slow fashion consumption patterns;
5. Crowdsourcing, shortening of the production cycle and supply chain;
6. Pedagogical approach to teaching slow fashion;
7. Emerging business models.
