Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Over the last 2 years, there have been many changes in the business environment following the pandemic and the ongoing conflict in Ukraine. The evolution has been rather tumultuous, from cooperation to competition, from avoidance to compromise, from the attention paid to people to the one dedicated to survival in the business environment due to the restrictions and opportunities that have arisen. Now, business ethics are gaining increasing importance. This Special Issue aims to present to the reader a collection of high-quality scientific studies that refer to social real entrepreneurship; the relationship between economic performance, social responsibility, and organizational culture; the relationship between business ethics and organizational development; the relationship between ethical leadership and employee/economic performance; corporate social responsibility practices and organizational behavior. We appreciate original and useful articles that analyze the correlations between business ethics and corporate social responsibility, or between sustainability and ethical business, leading to a complex and representative exposure.
