Message from the Guest Editors

Sustainable interdisciplinarity focuses on human–nature relations and a multitude of contemporary overlapping research conducted within society.

This Special Issue aims to shed light on a wide array of research activities within the scope of four themes: sustainability, human geography, environment and interdisciplinary societal studies. These themes are further broken down into supporting tracks and exemplify sustainable interdisciplinarity. Researchers are invited to contribute original research articles that look at and understand novel knowledge-base central to these themes or their supporting tracks. Articles will exemplify novelty, technical depth, elegance, practical or theoretic impact and presentation.
