Message from the Collection Editors

As global demand for high quality animal protein is rising, awareness about the sustainability of livestock production systems is constantly increased. The aim of the Special Issue is to bring together contributions from a wide range of disciplines relating to the sustainability of livestock production (agricultural economics, rural sociology, livestock production, rangeland science, food quality, value chain analysis, etc.).

In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but not limited to) the following:

- Socioeconomic analysis of sustainable livestock systems;
- Sustainable management of livestock farms;
- Crop–livestock systems;
- Sustainability assessment in livestock production systems;
- Valorization of value chains of livestock products;
- Gender issues, generational renewal in livestock farms;
- Innovations and practices for livestock production systems;
- Farm policies for sustainable livestock systems.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.
