Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Changes in society worldwide are also reflected in agricultural enterprise strategies, which are constantly evolving and may be developed with regard to both the agricultural sector and the tourism sector. The objective of this Special Issue is to analyze the role of sustainable agriculture and tourism from the perspective of different research fields, in which an interdisciplinary approach is favored for studying all aspects and providing effective and current answers. The identification of new trends will provide answers for tourist and agrifood chain operators with the aim of implementing territorial actions to support sustainability.

Submissions detailing original, multidisciplinary approaches are especially encouraged.

sustainable agriculture;
precision farming;
sustainable tourism;
integrated rural development;
sustainable agrifood chain;
sustainable agricultural policies;
innovation and sustainable development;
marketing of sustainable agrifood products,
sustainability and consumers behavior;
sustainability and tourist motivation.
