Message from the Guest Editor

Dear colleagues,

Green tourism is low-impact tourism focused on protecting the ecology of an area while keeping local communities thriving. In recent decades, more resort areas have taken steps to exert less of an impact on surrounding environments, and sustainable tourism is therefore becoming more assessible.

This Special Issue aims to move the current event and conference industry towards sustainability. Potential submmision can be focusing on discussion of current issues, impacts, conflicts, opportunities, concerns, rationales, or innovative approaches to the development of the global green tourism industry, particularly in the events and conference sectors worldwide. Academics and relevant stakeholders can submit manuscripts in various forms. Papers selected for this Special Issue will be subject to a rigorous peer review procedure with the aim of the rapid and wide dissemination of research results, including models of development and their applications.
