Message from the Guest Editors

The main objective of this Special Issue is to share recent knowledge about the emerging solutions and strategies to produce less food waste, while using all waste as raw material for other food industries. A critical comparison among different food waste management models across various countries in the form of case studies would be advisable. The outlook of this Special Issue is expected to help in transforming food waste from a problem to a resource, and to achieve several Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), especially goals 2, 12, and 13.
