Message from the Guest Editors

We are calling for papers for a Special Issue of the journal Sustainability on research into bike share (public bike) and E-bike transport – rapidly growing modes that are promoting overall non-motorized transport.

We welcome contributions speculating on new mobility with advanced technology that can integrate many different types of public transportation systems. This Special Issue will cover many aspects including data-driven, GIS-based innovative methodologies to steer the system towards achieving targets, policy, governance, legislation, operation, integration of social science disciplines, engineering, case studies, and surveys and review papers from international and local perspectives. Proposed papers for this Special Issue may also cover a broad range of strategies that could promote the healthy and sustainable development of bike share and E-bikes.
