Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue addresses this broad set of questions, including aspects related to tourism planning, management and marketing in urban areas, relations between residents and tourists in contemporary cities, or the different positive and negative impacts of tourism. Certainly, analysis of the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic on tourism in cities, along with subsequent strategies for recovery, are also within the concerns and scope of this Special Issue. Original quantitative or qualitative research, conceptual or theoretical approaches and discussions focusing on economic, social, or institutional aspects of the sustainable development of tourism in cities, along with other relevant analyses of its importance, significance, or problems can be addressed.
