Message from the Guest Editors

Systems thinking (ST) has been applied extensively to many fields of knowledge. You are invited to submit a paper that explores the role of systems thinking in terms of addressing the challenges set by the outbreak of the pandemic and its aftermath.

This Special Issue will explore and promote some of the key developments in the use of systemic thinking in disaster events, be they man-made or natural, and illustrate how these developments are helping practitioners, policy makers, and decision-makers tackle the complexity of contemporary and problematic social, political, business, security, health, and environmental situations.

We are interested in original conceptual and empirical papers that address Covid-19 problematic situation systemically.

The length of manuscripts submitted to this Special Issue: between 5000 to 7000 words. For questions regarding appropriate content concerns and proposed topics, please contact the Special Issue guest editors. If you wish to contribute to this Special Issue, please provide an Abstract (maximum 200 words) by the 15 July 2020.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Systems is a leading venue for the quick and global dissemination of results of cutting-edge research in various areas of systems science and systems-related fields. An increasing number of researchers are realizing the enormous potential of systems thinking in managing the many unprecedented and complex issues in all areas of need. The Systems journal provides a home of exceptional quality for the manuscripts of these researchers who often find it difficult to publish their work in conventional discipline focused journals.
