Message from the Guest Editor

The importance of the environment in human or animal health has long been known. Environmental toxicants such as metals, metalloids and PCBs, that persist in the environment for years tend to be especially harmful. This special issue in Toxics will focus on persistent environmental toxicants known to cause significant adverse human or animal health effects. Studies that use a physiologically or environmentally relevant dose or exposure level of environmentally persistent toxicants are welcome for submission. Both in vivo and in vitro studies are encouraged.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Toxics (ISSN 2305-6304) is an international, peer-reviewed, open access journal which provides an advanced forum for studies related to all aspects of toxic chemicals and materials. We aim to publish high quality work that furthers our understanding of the exposure, effects, and risks of chemicals and materials in humans and the natural environment as well as approaches to assess and/or manage the toxicological and ecotoxicological risks of chemicals and materials. Please consider publishing in Toxics when preparing your next paper.
