Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

The aim of this Special Issue is to provide readers with present knowledge about the epidemiology, virology, and preventive methods of vaccine-preventable and emerging viral diseases. Areas of research in this field include the following:

- (1) epidemiology of viral diseases including vaccine-preventable diseases;
 - (2) immune responses to vaccines;
 - (3) vaccine development and efficacy evaluation of non-clinical phase and clinical phase;
 - (4) vaccine immunology;
 - (5) vaccine development against emerging viral diseases.
- Basic viral vaccine research, such as the generation of attenuated viruses and analyses of vaccine efficacy in model animals, is also welcome. Both original research articles and reviews are welcome.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Vaccines (ISSN 2076-393X) has had a 6-year history of publishing peer-reviewed state of the art research that advances the knowledge of immunology in human disease protection. Immunotherapeutics, prophylactic vaccines, immunomodulators, adjuvants and the global differences in regulatory affairs are some of the highlights of the research published that have shaped global health. Our open access policy allows all researchers and interested parties to immediately scrutinize the rigorous evidence our publications have to offer. We are proud to present the work and perspectives of many to contribute to future decisions concerning human health.
